Working conditions

As a community service organization, the work at Umbrella Co-op is demanding and rewarding. The CCHB works as part of an interdisciplinary and collaborative team. They have high responsibility for meeting patient needs and are often placed in conflict situations arising from differences in healthcare systems, expectations from the Canadian healthcare system and cultural dissonance. They are responsible for the accuracy of the information being translated, for patients' informed decision-making, and for maintaining patient charts up to date. The CCHB will be trained in general and specific clinical protocols and guidelines.

The Mobile Clinic CCHB works onsite in a shared office environment and remotely, using videoconferencing and mobile technologies.

The position also works on evenings and weekends to support the needs and gaps of the community served. Additional work hours may be required if project deadlines are tight and if problems occur during non-working hours. Hours may be banked and balanced out as per organizational guidelines.

Umbrella Co-op supports a trauma-informed care approach for patients and staff through training and practice. Targeted CCHB professional development for this unique role is also supported internally. Regular CCHB and team meeting debriefs provide emotional support.

The Mobile Clinic CCHB spends extended periods of time sitting stationary in front of a monitor using computers, which can cause muscle strain. The position will also have to do lifting of clinic equipment and supplies from time to time. If assistance is needed, the Mobile Clinic CCHB is encouraged to reach out to team members.
